

Master's Message

Brethren,

With the new year upon us, we have much to look forward to and be excited about—fundraisers, education, charity, and the continued growth of our lodge.

In the area of fundraising, I am confident that we will accomplish great things this year. Not only within our lodge, but throughout our community. As a charitable organization, our efforts will allow us to meet—and often surpass—our goals. I know many of you share the same feeling I do about charity: there is nothing quite like knowing that our work has a positive and meaningful impact in someone's life.

As for education, what more can be said that you do not already know? Education is a cornerstone of Masonry. From the moment we began our journey as Entered Apprentices, through becoming Master Masons and beyond, we have been committed to adorning our minds with finer thoughts, deeper understanding, and continual self-improvement.

These are just a few of the things I am looking forward to in the coming year. I invite each of you to join me as we continue to grow our lodge and achieve great things—not only for ourselves, but for the community we serve.

BE THE LIGHT!

Sincerely and fraternally,

Eddie Pollard, WM

Volunteer Equine Advocates (VEA) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization founded in 2003 and based in Tennessee, dedicated to rescuing, rehabilitating, rehoming, and providing lifelong care for at-risk equines including horses, mules, ponies, and donkeys.

They collaborate with law enforcement on animal cruelty cases, offer professional care for abused or neglected animals, and rely on volunteers for hands-on support to improve equine welfare across the state.

We are very pleased to have chosen them as our January Charitable initiative.

Christmas for Kids Fundraiser

For the past two years we have had a great time going shopping and providing for some children who really need it. However, we have had to pull funds from our savings and investment to do so.

This year we are starting an all-year long drive to hopefully, overtime, collect $2500.00. We simply cannot afford to keep pulling out our emergency funds. If you would like to donate to this, please send a check to the secretary and mark it specifically for "Christmas for Kids" and we will get it earmarked for the right purpose. At some point in the future, we will be adding a Venmo/ phone-based payment system for this purpose. Thank you in advance for your help and support.

A Note from the Editor....

Since our first bulletin publication in January 2026, I've been deeply committed to tackling one of the most frequent complaints I've heard from our fellow lodge members: "I didn't know what was going on." It's a sentiment that echoes through our community, and I understand the frustration it brings. While there's certainly some truth to the notion that showing up in person is the surest way to stay fully informed and engaged, we all know life gets busy—work, family, and other commitments can make attendance challenging for even the most dedicated among us. That's why I'm excited about these new lodge bulletins; my sincere hope is that they will effectively bridge that information gap, ensuring every member feels connected, up-to-date, and empowered to participate more actively in our cherished craft.

Looking back, it's clear that our organization has been somewhat dormant over the past few years. We've maintained the basics, but we've sat back and done far less than our potential allows. Now, it's high time we shake off that inertia and get busy revitalizing our lodge with fresh energy and collective purpose. We have a rich history and a wealth of talent within our ranks, and by coming together, we can create meaningful experiences, foster stronger bonds, and make a real impact in ways we haven't seen in decades.

That said, this bulletin initiative was never intended to be a solo effort or a one-man show—quite the opposite. It's designed to be a collaborative platform that draws on the diverse perspectives and skills of our entire membership. I'm filled with great optimism that many of you will feel inspired to join in and contribute your unique voices. Whether you're a long-time member with stories from our lodge's past or a newer initiate eager to share fresh ideas, your input is invaluable. We enthusiastically welcome anyone who's interested to add depth and variety to this endeavor: perhaps craft a thoughtful piece on lodge education, shining a light on Masonic history, symbols, or rituals; spotlight a fellow member who's made noteworthy contributions to our community; share a personal reflection on what the craft means to you; or even submit event recaps, upcoming calendar highlights, book recommendations, or creative content like poetry or artwork related to our principles. Really, the possibilities are endless and that enriches our shared experience and strengthens our brotherhood!

If you have any desire to help shape this bulletin and help us build momentum, please don't hesitate to reach out. Contact us at info@ksl6.org with your ideas, submissions, or questions. Together, let's turn this into a vibrant, member-driven resource that not only informs but also inspires and unites us. I'm looking forward to hearing from you and seeing what we can achieve as a team.

Earning the Master's Wages

Our Masonic rituals often mention receiving “wages”. We learned as Fellow Crafts that the wages of that degree are “Corn, Wine, and Oil”. I do not recall during my time as a Fellow Craft as ever actually receiving an ear of corn, a bottle of wine, or a drop of oil. As we have come to learn in our Masonic journeys, many things mentioned in ritual are purely symbolic in relation to our ancient Brethren, who wrought in both Speculative and Operative Masonry.

Our ritual says we were induced to become Master Masons so that we may “receive more wages”, and what their symbolic uses are. However, we are never told what those wages are or how they are earned. As with the many aspects of Freemasonry, it is left to our own interpretation during our growth as Masons in our never-ending search for More Light.

Perhaps our venerable Brother, Most Worshipful Grand Master of Pennsylvania Benjamin Franklin, offers us the best insight into the meaning of the Master's Wages.

“Masonic labor is purely a labor of love. He who seeks to draw Masonic wages in gold and silver will be disappointed. The wages of a Mason are earned and paid in our dealings with one another; sympathy begets sympathy, kindness begets kindness, helpfulness begets helpfulness, and these are the wages of a Mason”.

In each of our degrees, we were charged with performing the duties which we owe to God, our neighbors, and ourselves. We were told that Charity and Benevolence we are always to inculcate. A reasonable interpretation of “earning the Master's Wages” is the faithful performance of those duties and carefully preserving the Ancient Landmarks of the Order entrusted to our keeping.

Webster defines Benevolence as 1: a disposition to do good. 2: an act of kindness 3: a generous gift. All these things are Masonic virtues that are expected of us as Masons. Just as in Operative Masonry or any other profession, labor, work ethic, productivity, and results determine our ability to earn a wage. You don't earn a wage without putting in the work.

That work comes in many forms, all of which contribute to the Pillars of the Order. The Lodge cannot function, nor fulfill its Charitable and Benevolent obligations to the community without the labor of likeminded Masons. Each of us has our own talents, interests, and abilities that can make meaningful contributions to the good of the Order. As an old saying goes, "the best ability is availability". That simply means giving your time to Masonic duties and service to the lodge and to the Craft.

We cannot think of earning the Master's Wages without cultivating Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. Those noble principles of our profession, without which Freemasonry would be only as "sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal". In other words, if we don't put in the labor of living up to those principles, Freemasonry and all it claims to be is just meaningless noise.

Each of us has their own work to do in "Earning the Master's Wages". It could be cooking for a fundraiser, visiting shut in brothers, checking on widows, shopping for kids at Christmas, or dropping more than your pocket change into the charity basket. It's also attending Lodge meetings regularly, offering your input, participating in debate, serving in a chair, serving in a committee, the cleaning and upkeep of the lodge, and mentoring your newer brethren. Just to name a few.

The rituals of our Craft entrusted to us by our ancient brethren have survived antiquity only through their labor and those that followed. Therefore, as Master Masons, we have another duty to learn the Craft, practice the Craft, master the Craft, and teach the Craft, so that Freemasonry can flourish into future generations. The labor required in this endeavor is simple but requires much effort. Come to lecture practices and degree practices. Earn the Lecture and Proficiency cards and teach the new Entered Apprentices and Fellow Crafts so they too can become Master Masons. Take it upon yourself to study the Tennessee Craftsman and learn different parts of ritual, so that you can make contributions in the conferral of a new brothers' degree.

In addition to a Master's Wages, is the symbolic right of a Master Mason to "travel to foreign countries". To us, that means traveling to other Masonic Lodges to fellowship with other brethren and supporting them with your labor as needed. Not only are you giving a benevolent service to your brethren lodges, but you are also improving your own knowledge of the Craft through active participation.

All these forms of labor in "Earning the Master's Wages" have one thing in common. It requires one valuable resource: your time. As an Entered Apprentice, we were taught the working tools and their uses. This is where the Twenty-Four-Inch Gauge becomes a valuable tool. Of course, Freemasonry should never interfere with your necessary vocations, which are not to be neglected. But with careful use of that working tool, we can always balance our time in a way to Earn the Master's Wages.

As Brother Ben eloquently said, the Masonic wages we are paid are the results of our labor. The gratitude shown by a Mason's widow when delivering a gift or just saying hello; Knowing that a needy child has gifts for Christmas or new clothing to wear; A distressed Brother has the relief he needs; the smiles on the faces of children enjoying a good meal. It is that noble feeling of charity, and he who is destitute of that noble feeling is unworthy the name of Mason.

The wages received are also the fellowship a Mason has with his brethren, in his own lodge and the lodges he travels to. It is the pride of participating in the initiating, passing, and raising of new Masons, and welcoming them into our Ancient and Honorable Order. It is the respect and appreciation shown to you by elder Masons for your efforts and willingness to learn the Craft and participate in Degrees. It is reciprocation by traveling brethren from other lodges to help confer Degrees when we are short-handed. We should not ask for support from other lodges without being willing and able to do the same.

In closing, "The Master's Wages" are not material things such as the right to wear a Masonic ring, or a decal on your car, or title you bear. It is not, nor ever has been, something that you are automatically entitled to when you are raised to Master Mason. It is something that must be continually earned to be received. Earning the Master's Wages is living up to your obligation and taking to heart the solemn charge given to you on the day you were raised. Its service to your Lodge, service to your brethren, service to humanity, and service to the Craft. The labor required in the faithful performance of these tasks is great, but the rewards are noble.

From the Secretary

As I go through the process of closing out one year and setting up for the next, it provides me an opportunity to connect with lodge brothers and particularly those that may not be able to come to the lodge. There are several of our brothers and/or their spouses that are having health issues and other struggles. Let's keep them in our prayers and keep in touch as we go through 2026.

The lodges in our district will be starting off the year with a School of Instruction hosted by King Solomon Lodge #6 on March 7, 2026. Please join us for a fellowship breakfast at 8am and the work will start at 9am.

The District 12 meeting will be held on April 11, 2026 at the Macon County Fairgrounds in Lafayette, Tennessee. A meal will be served at 6pm with the meeting following. Please come out to meet your Grand Lodge officers and discover all the wonderful things going on in Masonry throughout the state of Tennessee. This event is open to all Masons, their families and friends.

As was mentioned in last month's bulletin, the lodge has adopted a new dues structure, and we will be sending out dues notices within the next week that will reflect your dues for 2026.
