

Master's Message

Greetings from the East.

As we move deeper into this new year, it is inspiring to see how much we are accomplishing together. One of our greatest achievements has been our renewed commitment to charity. Last month, we donated to the Volunteer Equine Advocates, and this month we supported Ashley's Place.

Ashley's Place holds a special place in my heart. Their work with children recovering from physical, mental, and sexual abuse is truly remarkable. If that isn't God's work, then nothing is.

We have also made meaningful progress in the study/library room with the cedar work, thanks to Brother Ron Taulman. Brother Ron accepted this task with the heart of a warrior, and his dedication reflects the true spirit of Masonry. I hope that all future brothers enter Freemasonry with the same zeal and love for the Craft that Brother Ron displays.

With all that we are working toward and achieving as a lodge, I would love to see more brothers become involved and help our lodge grow into an even greater asset to our community. A brother does not need to be an officer or have many years in the Craft to make a difference—every brother has something valuable to contribute.

As we move into the second month of this year, my hope is that we continue to grow, to achieve great things, and to serve our community with generosity and purpose. Let us be a beacon of light—through our actions, our charity, and our brotherhood—and a light that draws good men to become candidates for our noble institution.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Wor. Robert E. Pollard
Worshipful Master, 2026

From the Quarry

The mission of the Sumner Child Advocacy Center is to ensure that a cooperative, multi-disciplinary team delivers comprehensive services to child physical and sexual victims and their families in a child-focused, neutral-based facility. By providing coordinated services through cooperation among the various disciplines, the Center will ensure that each child will be protected from further victimization. We were pleased to have shown our appreciation for the valuable things this group accomplishes here in our community. Please feel free to join us each month as we spread a little joy in the community. Poor old WM has gone by himself.....

Christmas for Kids Fundraiser

For the past two years we have had a great time going shopping and providing for some children who really need it. However, we have had to pull funds from our savings and investment to do so.

This year we are starting an all-year long drive to hopefully, overtime, collect $2500.00. We simply cannot afford to keep pulling out our emergency funds. If you would like to donate to this, please send a check to the secretary and mark it specifically for "Christmas for Kids" and we will get it earmarked for the right purpose. At some point in the future, we will be adding a Venmo/ phone-based payment system for this purpose. Thank you in advance for your help and support.

From the Quarry

Earlier this year, we shared exciting news about a lodge project that was gradually coming together. Today, we're thrilled to announce that—aside from some final decorating and furniture placement—our new library and study room is officially complete! This achievement was made possible through funding from the lodge itself, along with generous personal donations. It looks absolutely stunning.

A huge shoutout to Ron Taulman and Jim Scruggs for kicking off the initial phase, and an extra special thanks to Ron for diving back in and seeing it through to the end. It's truly a sight to behold! We're all incredibly grateful for your time, effort, and unwavering dedication to the lodge. This just goes to show: it's always rewarding to channel your skills into projects like this, whether in the quarries or beyond.

From the Quarry

Our weekly practice sessions are yielding some impressive results! It's been ages, but we're thrilled to report that not one, but three brothers have successfully presented their Master's Catechism in open lodge. Hard work truly pays off—huge congratulations to Brothers Jeff Fullerton, Mike Lenart, and Bob Krauth! Now, let's gear up for those conferrals! (Half-kidding... but seriously, lol.) If you're looking to brush up, relearn, or dive into lectures and degrees for the first time, come join us. We've lacked a solid educational framework for far too long, and it's impacted our work. But the tide is turning, and it takes everyone's commitment to keep the momentum going. Please come aboard!

Sacred Numbers in Masonry

In Freemasonry, certain numbers hold profound symbolic significance, serving as allegorical tools to teach moral, philosophical, and spiritual lessons. Among these, the numbers 3, 5, and 7 stand out as particularly sacred, forming a core triad that guides the initiate through the progressive journey of self-improvement and enlightenment. Drawing from ancient traditions—including Pythagorean philosophy, biblical numerology, and the operative craft of stonemasonry—these numbers appear repeatedly in Masonic ritual, most famously in the Fellowcraft degree's lecture on the winding staircase leading to the Middle Chamber of King Solomon's Temple.

The number 3 is the foundation of Masonic numerology, representing divine harmony, balance, and completeness in unity. It embodies the triadic nature of existence: the three Greater Lights (the Volume of Sacred Law, the Square, and the Compasses), the three principal officers of the lodge (Worshipful Master, Senior Warden, and Junior Warden), the three pillars of wisdom, strength, and beauty, and the three degrees of Craft Masonry (Entered Apprentice, Fellowcraft, and Master Mason). As the first odd number beyond unity, 3 symbolizes stability—like the triangle, the strongest geometric form—and reflects core Masonic principles such as brotherly love, relief, and truth. It evokes the divine triad and the eternal order of the universe, reminding Masons that true strength arises from equilibrium.

Ascending further, the number 5 bridges the material and intellectual realms, symbolizing human perception and proportion. In the winding stairs, the five steps correspond to the five classical orders of architecture (Tuscan, Doric, Ionic, Corinthian, and Composite) and the five human senses (sight, hearing, touch, taste, and smell), through which we experience and understand the world. Five is peculiarly tied to the Fellowcraft degree: five are required to hold a lodge of that grade in some traditions, geometry (the fifth science) is deemed synonymous with Masonry, and the five points of fellowship seal the bonds of brotherhood. Pythagoreans viewed 5 as the number of life itself, blending the first even and odd numbers ($2 + 3$), representing the mixed conditions of existence—joy and sorrow, order and chaos. Thus, 5 teaches Masons to cultivate awareness, discipline, and harmony between body and mind.

Finally, 7 signifies perfection, completeness, and divine fulfillment. The seven steps of the winding stairs lead to the culmination of the journey, corresponding to the seven liberal arts and sciences (grammar, rhetoric, logic, arithmetic, geometry, music, and astronomy), which elevate the intellect from ignorance to wisdom. Influenced by biblical precedents—such as the seven days of creation—7 represents wholeness and the sacred cycle of labor and rest. It is the most "venerable" of the sacred numbers, marking the seal of divine order and the attainment of moral and spiritual maturity.

These three numbers—3, 5, and 7—together outline a path of ascent: from foundational balance (3), through sensory and intellectual refinement (5), to ultimate perfection (7). The winding staircase itself becomes a metaphor for Masonic progression, where each flight imparts lessons in virtue, knowledge, and harmony.

Beyond this core triad, higher or more advanced Masonic systems incorporate extensions of these principles through multiplication and powers of 3, reflecting deeper layers of completion and attainment.

The number 9, as the square of 3 (3×3), holds special sacred status, particularly in the York Rite's Cryptic Masonry (such as the Select Master degree), where it is the paramount number—recurring in motifs like nine arches in the secret vault, nine attributes of the Deity, the requirement of nine Select Masters to open a Council, nine gavel knocks by officers, and nine as the sacred number of the degree itself. Pythagoreans called 9 teieios, the number of completion or perfection, and in Masonic thought it often symbolizes man in his imperfect yet sacred state: the outer form as the imperfect temple holding the sacred treasure (the "Word" or inner light) within. It represents wholeness achieved through cycles of growth, sometimes linked to ancient associations with the Muses, spheres, or the circumference of a circle (360° reducing to 9 in digital root numerology).

In Cryptic Masonry, 9 alludes to completion of the circle of Masonic science, preserving divine truths in hidden vaults. Higher powers build on this foundation: 27 (3×9 , or 3^3) and 81 (9×9 , or 3^4) are esteemed as sacred in certain advanced or historical degrees, symbolizing amplified completeness, the multiplication of divine order, and progression toward greater enlightenment. As the cube of 3, 27 evokes the "cubical stone" in Cryptic Masonry, a perfect form representing stability and the hidden preservation of sacred knowledge (with rituals often involving $3 \times 3 \times 3$ knocks or references to 27 as three eneads).

Similarly, 81 as the square of 9 extends this to even greater layers of perfection, appearing in speculative contexts or appendant bodies where the emphasis shifts to cubic or squared extensions of the foundational triad. These numbers underscore that Masonic wisdom expands exponentially from the ternary root, building ever-higher structures of understanding.

The number 33 stands apart as iconic in the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, where it denotes the honorary 33rd and highest degree—an accolade conferred for exceptional service, dedication, and contributions to Freemasonry and humanity. It symbolizes the pinnacle of attainment, supreme wisdom, and spiritual enlightenment, often interpreted as the culmination of the Masonic journey (sometimes allegorically linked to the 33 vertebrae supporting the human head, representing the ascent of consciousness from base to crown). While not part of Craft Masonry, 33 embodies the ultimate reward for living Masonic principles fully, with its ring bearing the motto "Deus Meumque Jus" ("God and my right") and the double-headed eagle as emblems of balanced authority and universality.

In essence, these sacred numbers—from the essential 3, 5, and 7 to the elevated 9, 27, 81, and 33—are not mere arithmetic; they are emblems of the soul's journey toward light, order, and moral perfection. Rooted in the Pythagorean reverence for odd numbers as symbols of divine completeness, they trace a hierarchical progression: the foundational triad expands into squared and cubed powers of 3, culminating in honorary peaks of attainment. They invite every Freemason to reflect on the structured beauty of the universe and to build their own "spiritual temple" with the same precision and reverence that ancient builders applied to stone. Through contemplation of these numbers, the initiate learns that true enlightenment is achieved step by step, in measured progression, under the guidance of timeless wisdom.

From the Secretary

I would like to begin by thanking our members for the overwhelming response I have received from the dues notices that were sent out in early January 2026. As of today, 40% of the membership have already paid their dues. This is a tremendous help to our cash flow as the majority of our expenses fall within the first quarter of the year.

In the last bulletin I shared two events that will be held within our district. One being a School of Instruction hosted by your King Solomon Lodge #6 on March 7 and the District 12 meeting which will be held at the Macon County Fairgrounds on April 11.

The 212th Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons of Tennessee will be held on March 25 and 26 at the Grand Lodge building located at 100 7th Avenue North in Nashville, Tennessee. The doors open at 7:30am each day for registration with business concluding @ 4:30pm. All Master Masons are encouraged to attend and see your Grand Lodge in action as we elect new Grand Officers and vote on Masonic code proposals. You must have a 2026 dues card in order to register and attend.
